CHURCH DEDICATION A JOYOUS OCCASION

ST. JOHN'S LUTHERAN PARISH
HOLDS FIRST SERVICES IN BUILDING.

ALL PEWS ARE FILLED

District President, the Rev. A. F. Augustine, Conducts Ceremonies.
—Structure Greatly Admired.

St. John's German Lutheran parish celebrated a memorable festival yesterday, the dedication of its fine new house of worship on the site of the old church, corner of North Bluff street and Peace Court. Despite low-lying skies and occasional showers the church was crowded to the doors at each of the three services held, many friends of the congregation joining with them in their joyous observance.

Just before ten o'clock a. m., the building committee and the parish officers took their places on the entrance stairway and platform and as the hour struck, Rev. Paulz, the contractor who constructed the church, handed its keys to the pastor, the Rev. S. W. Fuchs. The doors were then thrown open in the name of the Trinity and clergy and the congregation entered. The former took their places in the altar recess after which the services were begun.

Using the ancient Lutheran ritual, the Rev. A. F. Augustine, of Dean Chair, conducted the formal ceremony of dedication, and also delivered the dedicatory sermon, a thoughtful discourse on the practicalness of Christianity.

Fuchs took occasion at the close of the service, to express his thanks to the building committee, the congregation and all others who had shared in the work of erecting the new building.

A second service in the German language was held at 3 p. m., the sermon being delivered by the Rev. H. Fredow, of Summer, Iowa, and an English service was begun at seven o'clock in the evening. The speaker was the Rev. Otto Wilke of Madison who preached a sermon from Ephesians, second chapter, beginning with the twentieth verse:

"And he built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner-stone."

"In whom all the building fits firmly together and grows into a holy temple unto the Lord."

"In whom ye also are built together for an habitation of God through the Spirit."

The dedication of such an edifice as this, began the speaker, is an occasion of thanksgiving and joy. For a long time you have looked forward to its completion, to see your vision of it realized, and worshiped in it. It has become our custom to erect beautiful buildings for business, for government, for education, but significant as they are the wants of man are too great to find satisfaction in them. Man's who nature is revealed in any structure reared for temporal purposes. The humblest spire that points toward heaven expresses more of his higher aspirations.

"And here we have a place where we might render him homage and adoration, hear his word preached, and receive his blessed sacraments, a place where we might seek and receive forgiveness and consolation."

"But the real church of God is not a structure made with hands. It is not an ecclesiastical organization. The true church is built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner-stone." It is a church founded upon a rock, and when the flood rose, the structure which the world has built upon it could not shake it. Any church that is built upon human opinion is like the house that was built upon the sand, which fell at the onslaught of the waves. The real church is a spiritual organization and its construction has never been interrupted. It is a spiritual building reared by God himself out of living souls. These are the materials with which he works. As Michael Angelo saw the face of an angel in a block of discarded marble so God saw his own image in fallen mankind, and sent his own Son to die for us that this image might be revealed.

"Jesus Christ is the corner-stone of this church. The prophets and apostles are also referred to as the foundation because God himself has laid in building that structure. If we take our illustration from modern building we fail to catch the significance of Christ as the corner stone. We must go back to the ancient structures where the corner-stone was the key stone which held the arch together, binding the walls so firmly that they could not be disassembled. In a far superior sense are the words applied to Jesus Christ. He himself takes up the picture and says: 'The stone which the builders rejected is become the head of the corner.'"

"Christianity is not one truth, but many. But one truth stands forth and unites them all and centers in Jesus Christ. He is the designer in whom all the building fits framed together growth into a holy temple unto the Lord. Its beauty excels anything that we can conceive of. It is not a mass of materials thrown carelessly together, shapeless and without order. The hand of the master is to be seen in every line."

"Upon this building is written the word 'Holy' meaning separated, and dedicated unto the Lord. We are admonished that 'as he that called you is holy, so be ye also holy,' and our ideal is, 'Be ye perfect even as God himself is perfect.' Although God is everywhere present, in a superior sense, He dwells within His church, the church spiritual, ever moulding it toward beauty and perfection of His design. So the time in the day of consummation and triumph, this ideal will be attained. The ministers and stewards are doing their work, some in a humble, some in a more prominent place. Each soul is a stone in the edifice, and all are essential to the obscure and hidden as well as the plainly revealed."

"There are reverses to be met, setbacks, doubts, and tribulations in the work of building, but never does it cease. If we grow weary we have the consolation that the spirit of God helps our infirmities, that He will be constant in comfort, in aid and inspiration, and that if we do our part we need not fear for the future."

"The glory of the church is not the size and form of the building, in high arched nave and vaulted roof, in stained windows and peeling organs, but in its sacraments, in the preaching of the Word of God, the Gospel message, the forgiveness of sins, the message of salvation, the indwelling of the Holy Spirit."

Special notice was furnished by the choir at all services and their selections were well rendered and greatly appreciated. Meals were served by the ladies of the church in the church basement noon and evening. This evening there will be a musical program and organ recital at the church conducted by the Rev. H. Brodow.

The members of the building committee of the new church are: William Rieker, Robert Schleuter, William Klein, Richard Teich and George Rathjen.

LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL WINS FIGHT TO HAVE TWO DEBATING TEAMS

Five Schools Have Entered Beloit College League, With Two Teams in a School—Schedule Is Out.

The Janesville and Beloit high schools have fought bitterly, in a quiet way, during the past month, as to whether or not there should be one or two debating teams in the Beloit College league this winter. Together with Beloit was the La Grange high school of Illinois, who wished for but one team. The locals' fight for two teams won. Evidently the Madison and Freeport teams turned in favor of two teams, which appears to Janesville as being the only logical way of holding debates.

Prof. A. H. Scheuter has received the new constitution from the Beloit College management, which shows many radical revisions. Last year there were eight high schools represented in the league of Illinois, and four in Wisconsin. But five schools are now represented, they being the Madison, Beloit, and Janesville high schools in Wisconsin, and the Freeport and La Grange high schools of Illinois. The idea of placing larger schools on the list, seems to meet with favor among the schools formerly connected with the league. To the winning team in the league, the Beloit college management will present a beautiful silver loving cup to be the possession of the winners permanently. The local school won the 1913 cup and championship of the league. Another trophy, a second cup will be made this year, with two old men back in the fold, and four other men capable of handling their subjects at hand.

The first debates to be held the second Friday night in February, and the second and deciding contests to be held exactly one month later.

The judges will meet in their own decisions and opinions. The school coming out on top with decisions will be regarded as champions. Keen interest in the league will be shown by the voters and the most viraciously school spirit rivalry will be the result, as each school will put forth strong teams.

The two local teams are relieving over the decision reached by the college management in placing two teams in the field from each school. Work has already been begun, and a good stiff grind during the Christmas vacation, with a debate following between the teams, should prepare the league for a general cleanup in the season. Prof. Scheuter will coach his men in enunciation, delivery and deliberation, within the next two weeks and start the work right off by the local preparation for the season's work in the forensic line.

CANTWELL IS HELD ON A FRAUD CHARGE

Young Man Arrested for Selling Cow Which He Did Not Own, Will Have Hearing Thursday.

Charged in a warrant dated May 22, 1913, with selling a Durham cow to the Beloit College, which he fraudulently secured some forty dollars from A. G. Metzinger, James Cantwell appeared before Judge Maxfield in municipal court this morning. His hearing was set for Thursday morning at ten o'clock and his bond was placed at $500. Cantwell, who has been missing since the alleged offense was committed in May of this year, was arrested by Patrolman Tom Morrissey last night.

A trio of drunks was arraigned in court this morning. Andrew Christensen, claiming Stoughton as his home, was unable to tell the court how he got to Janesville and said he really thought he was in Madison. He was given a ten day jail term. Dan Zaton paid a fine of $5 and costs and Louis Lapine, hailing from Green Bay, drew $15 and costs or fifteen days, choosing the latter alternative.

have some other great nations. Ten years ago our largest battleship cost $5,382,000. The next dreadnaught will cost $14,444,000. When is this accelerating expenditure to be reduced? "Naval programs, announced by the nations already having the largest navies, and the entrance into the building of dreadnaughts by nations which have not hitherto burdened their people with the expense of large battleships, indicates that the end is not yet. No single nation with large interests, can safely take a vacation from the building of battleships. The world is in a desperate race to outdo each other through action. If it is not hastened by appeals for the peaceful settlement of national differences the day is not far distant when the growing burden of taxation for excessive war and naval expenditures will call a halt."

"The suggestion of a vacation for one year in battleship building has met with hearty approval and various plans for the proposed cessation in battleship construction to be declared at once. It is not a vacation we need, but a permanent policy to guard against extravagant and needless expansions. Any vacation proposed would be a course, taken into account the conditions in government navy yards and in private establishments where battleships are built under contract. The whole force is at present engaged in building ships for which material has been purchased. Time should be given for shipbuilders to obtain commercial orders so as not to ask shipbuilders to incur loss."

The venture to recommend that the war and navy officials and other representatives of all the nations be invited to hold a conference to discuss whether they can not agree upon a plan for lessening the cost of preparation for war, and to consider the desired end of competitive building, carried on under whip and spur, could not be effective without agreement between great nations. It ought not to be difficult to secure an agreement by which the nations would agree to being overgrown and without imposing overburdening taxation upon the industry of a nation. I trust the tentative suggestion for a naval holiday by the strongest naval power will be debated and the matter seriously considered by an international conference looking to reduction of the armaments and costly plans for navy increase. I think this country will take the initiative and the states will follow by a conference of all powers to discuss reduction of the heavy cost of the Army and Navy."

Immediate requirement and operation of oil wells and refineries to furnish fuel for the navy, government manufacture of armor, more naval chaplains, better educational facilities for enlisted men and a graduated retirement law are the other chief recommendations.

The secretary thinks that the time has come when the navy should be freed from excessive prices charged by private manufacturers of armor plate, gun and gun forgings, powder, torpedoes and other supplies. He thinks, so he recommends appropriations for an armor plate factory and an increase in the gun factory, the powder factory and the torpedo works. He is anxious to see efforts to secure reasonable prices from the armor companies, and asserts that without its own plant the government would be at the mercy of three manufacturers in time of war. History does not warrant an assumption that the patriotism of these companies will prove superior to their desire for profits. The report comments upon contracts made by the companies to supply the navy with armor at prices much below those charged their own government, and directs particular attention to the fact that they at present supply armor for the Japanese cruiser Haruna at $406.25 a ton while charging $500 a ton for the armor for the American battleship No. 33.

The recommendation regarding oil wells and refineries follows the transformation of modern navies from coal to oil burners. The report says the price of oil steadily increasing upward, is now twice as much as in 1911, and will be a staggering item in the expense account of the navy in the future, unless the navy controls its own supply.

Therefore, Mr. Daniels urges, by the time the Panama Canal is opened the navy should be producing its own oil from its petroleum reserves in the oil fields and Buena Vista fields of California. He thinks the navy should operate its own oil fields and oil tanks erected at various ports. The report declares that too much money has been spent ashore for buildings and too little for oil and warships though no definite recommendations are made for the location of new docks pending the building of an adequate and well proportioned navy.

"WHO STOLE THE CIGARS?" IS MYSTERY AT STATION

"Who stole the cigars?" is the absorbing mystery at the station of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway, conjuring in interest. "How old is Ann?" and "Who struck Billy Patterson?" were the questions asked by a considerable number of smokers disappeared from a box supposedly well guarded and concealed. Last week one of the passenger conductors, just become a benefactor, presented the station force with a box of cigars. After passing them around the agent placed them under lock and key. When he next came to open the box he found an entire layer gone. He again locked up the box in a new place and to his surprise the next morning the box was found empty. Only telegraph operators, the yardmaster, call boys and agents are permitted in the room but the question is still unsolved.

OBITUARY

Arthur Kellogg.

Arthur Kellogg, who has been residing with his son-in-law, Bert Bahoray, of this city, during the last year, passed away very suddenly at Portage November 27th. Services were held by the Baraboo Masons and interment was made at the Baraboo cemetery Sunday afternoon. Mr. Kellogg was on a visit with friends at Portage when taken sick, and died at the Portage hospital after only a week's illness.

Mrs. Mary Ann Plunket.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Ann Plunket, were held this morning from the St. Patrick's church at nine o'clock, the Rev. Dean E. J. Kelly officiating. The casketbearers were: James Deer, Sam. Watson, John W. Hemming and E. H. Connel. Interment was held at Mount Olivet cemetery.

Mrs. Plunket died Saturday afternoon at five o'clock, at her home of heart failure. She was sitting in her rocking chair when death came. Born in the county of Louth, Ireland, March 17, 1829, she remained in her native country until she became a young woman. She then came to Boston, Mass., where she remained two years. Janesville was then visited and her living for this vicinity made her a life-long resident for over fifty years.

Mrs. Sophia A. Taylor.

Mrs. Sophia A. Taylor died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clara Stuart of Council Grove, Kansas, Saturday morning, November 22d. The immediate cause of her death was a stroke of apoplexy.

Mrs. Taylor was born in 1840 at Black River, Lorraine county, Ohio. Her family was among the early pioneers coming to Wisconsin in 1846 and locating at Orfordville. In 1868 she was married to E. S. Taylor and he resided until a few months ago, when the family moved to Kansas.

Mrs. Taylor was a life-long member of the Methodist church, and during her active life one of its most faithful workers. She possessed many Christian graces which won for her the love of all who knew her. Quiet and unassuming, yet steadfast of purpose, she lived a consistent life and her memory will long be cherished. Remaining relatives are her husband, one son, Sylvester, of Council Grove, Kansas, and three daughters, Mrs. Ida Goodrich of Chicago, Mrs. Jennie Sullivan of Waverly, Kansas, and Mrs. Clara Stuart of Council Grove, Kansas. Two brothers also remain, Truman Babbitt of Lorraine, Ohio, and Sylvester Babbitt of Seward, Washington. Interment was made at Orfordville last Tuesday and the funeral services were conducted by her late pastor, Rev. T. D. Williams, of the Carthage church, assisted by Rev. Sainsbury of Orfordville.

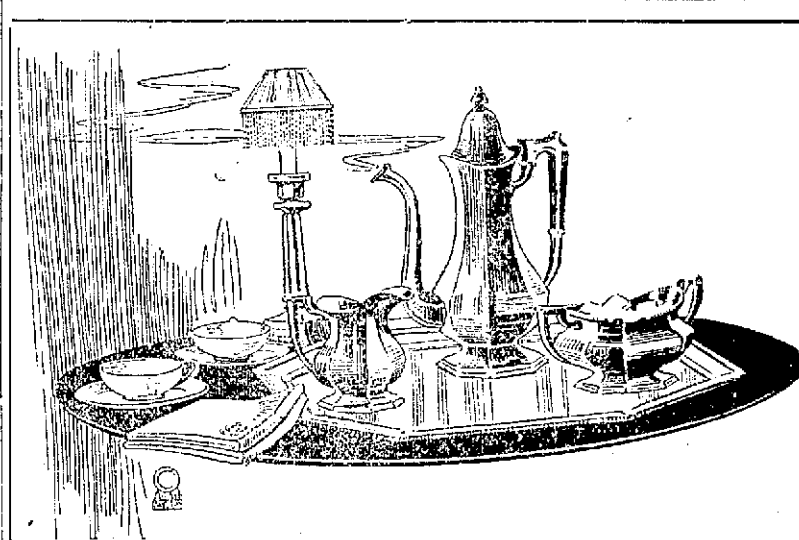

Flay Bancroft.

Death came to Miss Flay Bancroft, at her home in Lake Helen, Florida, the latter part of last week, the exact date being uncertain. Miss Bancroft was formerly a resident of this city, where her family lived until her mother's death. Two years ago she went with her father to Florida, where they have since their home. She was born in Clinton, and was later adopted. She was connected with the Rock County Telephone Company of this city for many years.

Her remains will arrive in the city sometime tomorrow, and funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at North Johnstown, where burial will take place at the side of her mother's grave.

METHODIST BROTHERHOOD
MEETS TUESDAY NIGHT

A banquet of the Methodist Brotherhood will be held on Tuesday at 6:45 p. m. After the banquet a program will be given. Life in Honolulu will be shown with stereoscopic views by R. G. Lewis, and "Country Boy's Work" will be discussed by Mr. Markham of the County Y. M. C. A.

TAKE BELoit NEGRO TO STATE'S PRISON

Silas Payne, 'Convicted of Breaking into Saloon, Brought to Waupun by Turnkey Wegan.

Silas Payne, the Beloit negro convicted of breaking into the saloon of James Clark in that city, and sentenced to fifteen months' imprisonment in the state's prison at Waupun, was taken there this morning by Turnkey William Wegan.

Clarence Craudall of Beloit, a prisoner paroled out on a five months' term about four weeks ago, fell off the water wagon on Thanksgiving day. He has been returned to the county jail and placed on a diet of bread and water, the legal penalty for the offense. He will also lose any three off his sentence for good behavior.

"SYRUP OF FIGS" FOR CONSTIPATED CHILDREN

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little stomach, liver and bowels.

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs," that this is their ideal laxative, because it gives its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this famous "Fruit Laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When the little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleaning" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages, and grown-ups, printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

There have been some big men in football. Big ones who along with their huge size and strength had speed and a wonderful knowledge of the game. Perhaps the biggest man who ever played the game—and one of the greatest players—was Frank Merrivell of Swarthmore. He weighed 272 lbs. and was a speed king. So big and so fast was he that it was his wont to pull down quarterbacks in full flight—grab off the fastest of them as they sized him. And he could put a good sized hole in most any line he ever opposed. With his great speed and bulk nothing could stop him. There have been other large and fast ones but none quite in the same class with Maxwell. He was a flash on the gridiron and weighed 260. But big and fast as all of these were, none of them stacked up with "Tiny" Maxwell. There is one in a million like him.

Almost every one has become familiar with a well-known legendary hero of small boys who was perhaps the greatest athletic wonder of all time. His doings are chronicled in a school of literature not approved by the Board of Education—the thrilling exploits of the greatest all-around athlete that ever held a youthful reader breathless from chapter to chapter. Of course, you'll see that Frank Merrivell is referred to. Remember him? Later in life perhaps you outgrow your taste for him. A little older you smiled at the thought of his highly improbable feats and were convinced that this author had outraged rational credulity. No human ever lived who could perform as he did. BUT, consider Charley Bricker. Did you know Merrivell in his heyday create a greater furor than this Bricker person? Did he ever do any more than beat a whole football team by himself, by his wonderful kicking alone? Here is a good place to hunt out to view again the old one about truth being stranger than fiction. Stranger even than highly seasoned, paper-backed, five-cent fiction.

Ty Cobb has taken to golf. It's a great game to improve the eyes, thinks Ty. It develops the arms and legs and it is altogether a charming distraction. But Ty thus far has not been playing the game. Quite the same as the usual golf devotee, he has instituted into his game a notion or two of his own. For instance, he does not tee off as does the accustomed player. Not caring for the accustomed fashion of starting a drive Ty has struck upon a new manner of getting the ball away. Standing as though at bat he has his caddy step a few rods away and toss the ball to him as a pitcher does in a ball game. And Cobb swings and generally manages to put the ball far into the middle distance as is his wont on the diamond. But here would seem, appears the brutal feature of the thing. One can scarcely help but wonder at the lot of the poor caddy. Who would care to stand up in front of Ty Cobb and let him drive a golf ball with all his might and main fast skidding past one's ears? The chances are that Cobb, since hitting upon this scheme, has been obliged to pay a pretty penny to induce caddies to caddy for him.

Quite a few suggestions have already been made for the All-American football champs, but as yet nothing very definite has been done. There seems to be plenty of material this season though. A glim at the dope shows that something like 87 different men have been recommended for the quarterback honor. The selection of the bright particular among all these will give the experts a nice little job.

rock IV. A prominent yachting authority, in discussing these preliminaries says:

"In the trial races between Sir Thomas Lipton's cutters, the new challenger Shamrock IV, and the old Shamrock 23-metre, built in 1908, W. P. Burton will have sole charge of both the yachts, and will sail the challenger, assisted by his sailing master, Albert Turner. The 23-metre will be steered by Captain Gould, a skipper who has a high reputation in racing circles. That the professional skippers whose names are so familiar to yachting people are not connected with the matches for the America's cup 1914 will appear extraordinary to many, and it is undoubtedly a circumstance of much interest and will form a topic of conversation amongst yachtsmen for many months to come."

"However, good men as they are, Sir Thomas Lipton is of course, typical of the latest school of seamanship in modern racing cutters using all the science and forethought that is required in handling the beautiful tall-spread runners. It may be pointed out that Captain Gould is a skipper of an older school."

The one point raised at present appears to be regret that a younger pilot of the modern yachting school was not appointed to lead the trial yacht against Shamrock IV. Criticism is voiced by another yachting enthusiast, as follows: "We know Captain Gould's record is a good one. We very much doubt, however, if he himself expects to be able to go straight into his new command with a new crew and get as much out of her as Captain Sycamore. The latter had carefully tuned Shamrock up and had had the best opportunity of doing so, opposed as he was day after day to a vessel to which he could not afford to give anything away, and which was also handled by a skipper as keen and experienced in the class as himself. It will take some little time to find out the form of the boat, with which her former skipper is already acquainted, and by that time the short period available for ordinary trials may have nearly or quite elapsed and the trial will have been lacking in conclusiveness. The new skipper and all concerned undoubtedly will do their utmost to bring the old boat up to the highest point possible. Nevertheless, there will be throughout an element of doubt as to whether even those most intimately associated with the trials will be able to gauge the merits of the new yacht as conclusively as if the old yacht were still under Captain Sycamore's command."

ABE MARTIN

Nothing makes a uglier feller as mad as to have somebody shake hands with him and say, "I ought to remember your face. Some fellows don't let their wives run nothin' but their furnace."

HIGH SCHOOL FIVE SEES TITLE AHEAD AS SEASON OPENS

Four of 1913 State Winners Are Ready to Upset Dope in Settling Another Wisconsin Championship.

The ban has been put on football at the local high school, after a very unsuccessful season, and in its place comes basketball, with Hemming, Atwood, Dalton and Stewart, as members of last year's state champions, was what paved the way for another title five. Two valuable men were lost by graduation, Captain Falter and Eider, both guards. These men were probably the best guards in the state last year, and their leaving together was what paved the way for the success of last year's team.

Coach Curtis will start his men with light workouts all this week, providing the new baskets are not these as new baskets will be dropped from above, instead of having posts in the way, as was the case in years back. The gymnasium has been redecorated, and repainted, and with the new baskets the team should be enabled to considerably improve this season, over that of last year.

The students are giving their favorite considerable support already, and providing the men quality, the examinations taken last week, there should be little doubt as to there being another Wisconsin championship hanging in the school next to the 1913 sheepskin.

Harold Stickney is a likely candidate this season. His playing was a feature last winter in regular practice, but disqualifications kept him out of the game. Paul Richards, a brother of Stewart, a former high school star, will make a strong bid at the first practice. Plenty of fresh material will be on hand to assist Coach Curtis in rounding out a five worthy of mention. Just a word about the 1913 regular season. It will more support among the students and local fans.

Victor Hemming will captain the five this winter. He has a reputation throughout Wisconsin, and Illinois as being one of the sure shots in the game, and his jump at center is remarkable. He played regular center last year, on the state championship five and set a new record in baskets by registering over one hundred and fifteen baskets in sixteen games averaging about seven per game. He was selected by Referee Schroeder, at the Appleton state tournament last spring. He being the first floor man among the centers. His floor work, coupled with his marvelous basket shooting, made him first choice for all-state center, and Schroeder, in addition, placed him captain of the all-state five. He predicts a wonderful season and hopes for the same success this winter that the great 1913 five gained in the basketball world last year. He weighs close to 175 pounds this year.

Edward Atwood, graduate forward last year, was picked by Schroeder, will be back at left forward again this season for his last year. Atwood was the fastest man in the tournament last year. He is over six feet tall, weighs about one hundred and sixty-five, and is a tower of strength in his position. His remarkable showing last year almost warrants an increase of speed for him this year in clearing up the state title again. Last season was his first year at the game, as far as real basketball was concerned, and to gain what he did, with the experience he had, is a record. He is anxious to get to playing and start something in this season of the state.

Maurice Dalton, the third of last year's regulars, believes the 1914 five will be a success. He is ready to start the good work. Dalton was one of the most studious forwards in the business last year. While he failed to make the all-state five, he made a strong bid at the section Referee Schroeder explained, that were it not for his consistent fouling he would have been selected without a doubt, to run playing mate to Atwood on the first selection. He weighs about 162 pounds, and will give any guard in the state, all he can do this winter, on the floor, chasing him.

Leslie Stewart, the consistent all-around sub from last year, will probably play regular forward this year. He was always ready to enter the game, at any of the three positions, and his work was always rendered good, without any fault to find. He was not used in the state tournament games last spring, but in his previous appearances he showed championship form at every moment of play. He will weigh around 155 pounds when the season opens. Coach Curtis will not pick a five definitely until the Christmas vacation. He expects to experiment for the next three weeks, in fitting his men to their most accustomed positions. It is likely that last year's men will be changed about, and the new material will fight their hardest to make a place on the squad.

MUTT & JEFF PANAMA

MUTT & JEFF

If the favorable press criticism and large audiences are any criterion

Manager Gus Hill evidently has cornered the entire laughter market in his latest offering "Mutt and Jeff in Panama" and the second of the "Mutt and Jeff" stage series. The offering, which is in the nature of a melodrama with musical comedy trimmings, will be seen at Myers Theatre Thursday, December 4. In this particular production we can make the usual prediction that the rank and file of local theatre-goers will be more than amused. It is an entertainment on new lines, with features and surprises not harbored in any other show. You are bound to laugh and hold high carnival over what "Mutt and Jeff" say and do and when an author can do this there is no gain saying that he has accomplished the purpose he set out to accomplish. The cast is a large and competent one and the scenic investiture all that could be desired. Ten song hits are distributed and other unique novelties are promised.

PROPOSE REVISION FOR WORLD SERIES GAMES-COMING YEAR

Latest Suggestion for Inter-League Series With All American Teams From Leagues.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, Dec. 1.—As an aftermath of the recent world's series a number of suggestions have been advanced for revising the present system in vogue in the meeting of the pennant winners of the two major leagues have been raised by both leagues and players regarding the round robin series as proposed by Garry Herrmann and other suggestions along similar lines. The latest proposal, which comes from a New England baseball authority, calls for a real inter-league series with all American teams from the National and American leagues playing for the world's title.

It is proposed that a committee, selected from the members of the Baseball Writers' Association, appoint two all-league teams from the American and the other from the National League, and that these combinations play a series of nine games for the world's championship, each game to be played in a different city on the two big circuits. The plan calls for the choice to be limited to twenty players in each league, and also would limit a player's eligibility to two years of such world's championship play.

The father of the idea points out that such a plan would provide a series between the best players of each league and would thus prove a test of the playing ability of the two rival organizations. It would further give star players in second division clubs a chance to share in the world's series money and thus of the two leagues in almost every city on the two circuits an opportunity to witness at least one game of each season's point the sixteen games would all share in the receipts and the leading players as well. By limiting the eligibility of a player to two years the way would be open for new and rising players to figure in the series.

It is pointed out that such a plan would do away with the jealousy and jabs of those players and magnates who race they are entitled to a portion of the thousands of dollars now annually divided by the leading clubs of the two leagues. Those who have heard the scheme explained and do not approve of it, claim that it is too Utopian for present baseball and opens the way for charges of favoritism and wire pulling during the selection process. They further contend that the interest, being national rather than centralized, would result in a heavy falling off in gate receipts and lead to the eventual collapse of the world's series as the climax of the baseball season. Regardless, however, of personal opinions, the fact that such a broad plan should have been evolved shows that there are baseball men who do not believe that the present world's series is the last word in America's national sport.

Preliminary details for the 1914 yacht race for the America's cup are rapidly being completed on both sides of the Atlantic. Long before the challenger and defending candidates slide off the ways, the sailing masters, skippers and crews will have been selected and all plans arranged for the trial and tuning-up races, both off the English and American coasts. Three possible cup defenders are assured for the United States, and one or two others may be picked if those interested can find satisfactory yacht builders to undertake the work.

In England the actual construction of Shamrock IV, Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger for the cup, was started on November 2, and the 75-foot vessel is expected to take the water early in April. Although five months will elapse before the tuning-up process is started, English yachting circles are already busily engaged in discussing the plans for the test races and the selection of the crew and officers for Sham-

COST OF EXPERIMENT.

Before the experiment with the parcel post system is through with the general public are going to pay dearly. The Wall Street Journal takes up the recent ruling of Postmaster General Burleson relative to the accepting of same shipped via the parcel post route, and says:

"Postmaster General Burleson has decided that when game is offered for transmission by parcel post, postmasters must accept it, even when state laws make it unlawful to ship it out of a state.

"It has been repeatedly asserted on official authority that the annual insect damage to the crops is greater than the expenses of the national government. The birds are the farmer's main reliance in keeping down crop pests. Some species of game birds are his most valuable allies. The destruction of bird life in the past has been appalling, and insect pests have increased. Most states are now attempting to protect the birds, and in fact nearly all forms of wild life. Most of them have limited the activities of the pot hunter by forbidding the shipment of game from one state to another.

"So important has the preservation of the birds become that a provision was added to the Underwood tariff law forbidding the importation of skins or feathers of birds, except those of domestic fowls and the ostrich. So strictly is this law being enforced by the customs service that feathers and aligettes are clipped from the hats of ladies coming into port. Recently a dealer was not allowed to bring in a large importation of English pheasants for market purposes.

"But Mr. Burleson's ruling will have a diametrically opposite effect. It makes the parcel post an agency for evasion of the state laws, and nullifying their effect. No individual or express company could carry game from one state to another without becoming amenable to the law. It is hard for the lay mind to understand why the postoffice department should take its attitude. These state game laws have been contested a number of times, on the ground they were regulations of interstate commerce; but the supreme court of the United States has always upheld the power of the state to make them.

"Reference to one of these cases is sufficient. In Geer vs. Connecticut, reported in 181 U. S., 519, the supreme court said that the state had the right to affix conditions on the killing of game in the state, and its sale; that when killed and offered for transportation to another state it did not become an object of interstate commerce. And the court further said that the question is not one under the control of the constitution of the United States.

"The parcel post was admittedly conceived in the interest of rural communities. But if it is to become an agency for crop damage, its conveniences will have been secured at a heavy cost to the farmer."

PROFESSOR TURNER.

Among the names suggested as a successor to the late Dr. Reuben G. Thwaites, as secretary of the Wisconsin State Historical society, is that of Frederick J. Turner, one of the best known authorities on American history. There are thousands of citizens of Wisconsin who remember Prof. Turner when he was at the head of the history department of the University of Wisconsin. Thousands of men and women, who look back with pleasure at their courses of instruction under his direction, who would rejoice should he be chosen head of this great Wisconsin Historical society. Prof. Turner is a native of Wisconsin, a graduate of the state university, a man thoroughly in touch with Wisconsin affairs and ideas, and so well fitted for the office that it should only be a matter of whether or not he will accept. The late Prof. McMasters of Pennsylvania university, himself an authority, said of Prof. Turner: "He is an authority on American history, especially of the middle west." When Prof. Turner left Wisconsin for Harvard university, the state was a direct loser. If it is possible for him to return to Wisconsin it will be the gain and the curators of the State Historical society should carefully consider the question before making a final decision against his appointment.

SPECIAL TRAINING.

At Madison during the past few days there has been in session a gathering of educators from the various schools of journalism, throughout the country. Talcott Williams of the Pulitzer school of New York City, voiced the idea that newspaper men should have special training. They should, but it should be under practical men, men of experience in actual newspaper work, in the "game" as it were, not by theorists and instructors who have never had to work as reporters, copy-renders or editors on daily papers. Having written magazine articles, having discussed wisely on how a newspaper should be run, does not fit a man for the position of teaching others. Every graduate of the various schools of journalism the country through, do not step to editorial desks from the graduating platform. They go out into the field and have to forget a great deal they have been taught was essential. They find the newspaper "game" far different from the theoretical ideas taught in the classroom. For the various schools of journalism throughout the country are to be successful they must have practical men at the head and on the list of instructors. William Young, the first editor of the Daily Cardinal at the University of Wisconsin, in fact one of its founders, a man who has had careful newspaper training, would make an excellent head for such a practical school at the state university could he be induced to give up his work in New York City and come to Madison. Such training as a man of his calibre could give students would follow out Mr. Young's idea, that newspaper men should have special training, but it is not until the theoretical ideas are put in the background and practical ones adopted will such schools be successful.

SALOON MAN GUILTY, SELLING ON SUNDAY

Trial of F. W. Smith, South Janesville Saloonkeeper, held in Municipal Court today.

After deliberating four hours the municipal court jury in the case of the state against F. W. Smith, South Janesville saloonkeeper, returned a verdict convicting him of violating the state law prohibiting the sale of liquor on Sunday, shortly before four o'clock this afternoon. His penalty will be imposed at the session of the court tomorrow morning.

Smith was charged with the sale of liquor on Sunday, Oct. 12, in violation of the state law, and his case was tried before a jury of six men in Judge MacNeil's court this morning. The jury was composed of John Dooley, Sam. Warner, Simon Minick, Fred Friese, William Hughes and Fred Perry.

District Attorney Stanley Dunwiddie called but one witness for the prosecution, George Hessebauer, Jr., residing on South Academy street, swearing that he went to Smith's place on the day mentioned in the complaint and secured beer for which he paid the usual charge. He was accompanied by two other young men, the testified, both of whom secured liquor. They were served in what was known as the waiting room of the hotel by Smith himself, who received the money paid for the beer, according to Hessebauer's story. District Attorney Dunwiddie introduced subpoenas issued for Ollie Myers and Philip Burchell, Hessebauer's companions, as evidence of the state's intention to secure all the evidence possible. The subpoenas were returned as it was impossible to find the two men wanted as witnesses.

F. W. Smith, the first witness of the defense, said that Hessebauer, Myers, Burchell and a fourth man, George Semrow, had come to his place on the day in question, and Burchell asked him to serve them some beer which he had ordered the day before. Smith explained that it was a usual practice for his customers to order a case of beer during the week and call for the same on Sunday, either having it served to them in the waiting room or taking it away with them. Burchell, George Semrow, and Stephen Brennan, Smith's barkeeper, corroborated this testimony.

All denied that any money was paid to Smith by either of the four young men, stating that the liquor was given over to Burchell, who had purchased the same earlier in the week. A part of the same case of beer was still in the cellar, Smith said.

The jury retired a few minutes before noon following the arguments to the jury by District Attorney Dunwiddie and Attorney John L. Fisher, counsel for the defense.

THIEVES MAKE RAID ON A CANDY STORE

Candy, Cigars and $150 in Change Taken From Pappas Brothers' Shop Last Night.

Pappas Brothers' candy shop on West Milwaukee street, near Academy street, is the latest place to be visited by sneak thieves from whom the city seems to be suffering an epidemic. The store was entered some time after eleven-thirty o'clock last night and several boxes of candy, a box of cigars, and $150 in change left in the cash register, were found missing by the proprietors this morning. Entrance was gained through a small window in the rear of the shop which had been taken out. As the space is very small a boy must have crawled inside and opened the door for his confederates. It is thought. The loss was reported to the police this morning and an attempt is being made to locate the culprits.

POUR LAST ARCH OF BRIDGE ON TUESDAY

Mayor Fathers Asks Bridge Foreman to Hurry Cement Sidewalk in Front of South Side Stores.

Work on the Milwaukee street bridge was being rushed today and the steel reinforcement was being placed for the last arch, which will be poured tomorrow. The bridge company has made excellent progress with the construction work and the completed structure will be realized within a few weeks. Although this was the day upon which the bridge should have been completed according to the exact wording of the contract with the city, the city officials realize the Gould company's good faith and only ask that the work be continued with all possible haste.

Mayor Fathers in conference with Foreman Shore today urged him to hasten the construction of the cement sidewalk on the south side of the bridge in front of the Bailey dry goods and the Golden Eagle clothing stores. These two places of business have been the ones to suffer most from the inconveniences of construction. Mr. Shore promised that he would endeavor to lay the sidewalk on next Saturday and Sunday so that it would be in readiness for the rush of holiday trade.

Chief Engineer Larson of the state railroad commission was in this city Sunday morning for a conference with city officials and the bridge foreman, to ascertain just how far the reinforcement being used in the cement work infringed upon the patents claimed by David Luten of Indianapolis, who has filed suit in the federal court.

NOTIFYING SHIPPERS OF RULING ON CLAIMS

Secretary F. E. Lane of Commercial Club Takes Action—Discusses Ornamental Lighting.

The Commercial Club directors met at the Grand Hotel this noon with President Jas. H. Elford in the chair and Secretary F. E. Lane, reporting the recent ruling of the state railroad commission regarding the time limit on claims for loss and damaged goods against railroad companies. These claims must be made within four months or be disallowed. Secretary Lane is sending a letter to shippers today on the matter.

A proposition to place a 50-foot electric sign somewhere near the railroad bridge at a cost of $350 was presented but no action taken.

The matter of ornamental lights for the main streets was again brought up and Chairman Amerpoli was delegated to invite the city committee to meet with the directors next week to discuss the situation.

A committee consisting of F. E. Lane, Edward Amerpoli and H. H. Bliss was appointed to report at the next meeting a plan for the conducting of a corn contest next year. It is the club's idea to foster the idea and make the contest a permanent institution, calling for the small fund necessary to carry it on from the public. It was suggested that the boys who grew corn in the contest just closed enter their samples in the mid-winter fair which is to be held in the auditorium in January.

MARRIAGE LICENSE RECORD SHATTERED

Number Issued Thus Far in 1913 Exceeds Record for Entire Preceding Year by Sixteen.

Marriages in Rock county this year promise to reach a record figure, the number granted thus far, 394, being sixteen more than the entire number issued last year—378. Up to December 1st, 392 had been granted by County Clerk Howard W. Lee, and two more were issued by him today. They were to Lemmon H. Millard and Grace V. Thompson of Milton; George A. Griffin of Freeport, and Arastha Rittenhour of Syracuse, Indiana. Although the large number of licenses granted this year might be credited to the desire of young men to get married before a certificate of figures for the last two months would not indicate it. There were fifty-eight licenses issued in October and not more than thirty-three in November. The new law requiring the groom to present a physician's certificate as a requisite to marriage, goes into effect on January 1.

DECLINE IN PRICE OF EGGS EFFECTED

Wholesale Price of "Firsts" Goes Down From Three to Five Cents.—More Egg Boycotts.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, Dec. 1.—The wholesale price of eggs, technically classed as "ordinary firsts" declined three to five cents in South Water street today, although there was no material increase in receipts. Dealers would not say that the drop was due to the boycott, but the women who are fighting the high prices derived much satisfaction from it.

Announcement that the suit of the federal government charging the Chicago Butter and Egg Board with violation of the anti-trust law will be brought to trial here this week, was another development in the egg war.

Washington, Dec. 1.—An egg boycott was launched here today by Mrs. Ellis Logan, president of the Federation of Women's Clubs. Workers armed with pledges in which signers were asked to agree not to buy eggs until the prices are reduced worked on the streets, in stores, at the slaughter convention and about the city generally, and took many signatures.

PREPARED FOR TRIAL OF FATHER AND SON

William W. Brown and Son George William Brown Charged With Murder of Constable Hawkins.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Marion, Ind., Dec. 1.—The case of William W. Brown, township trustee of Ingalls, charged with the murder of Albert Hawkins, a constable of Anderson, was called for trial in the grant county circuit court today. The case was brought here on change of venue from Madison county.

The killing of Hawkins occurred in the town of Ingalls on the night of July 9 last. The tragedy was one of the direct results of a reign of "blind tigers" at Ingalls. Some time previously Constable Hawkins had raided a hotel conducted by Brown and his son, George William Brown. On the date of the killing he had returned to the hotel to obtain further evidence desired by the prosecution. Witnesses heard a violent altercation between the constable and the Browns. Later the same night the body of the constable was found in the street a short distance from the hotel.

The following day the younger Brown surrendered to the authorities and stated that he had stabbed Hawkins in self defense. The elder Brown asserted that he had nothing more to do with the killing than being with his son at the time. The grand jury, however, returned a joint indictment accusing the father and son of the murder. The defendants asked for separate trials and the elder Brown elected to be tried first. Both of the accused have been in jail since the night of the murder.

TWENTY-SEVEN YEAR TERM FOR DEFAULTING CASHIER

Worth Heeding.

The cold storage business, like others, may be abused, but government officials are decidedly on the wrong track if they imagine they can reduce the price of living by handicapping the saving of food from the seasons of plenty to be used in the seasons of scarcity. Cold storage should be a great factor in keeping costs down rather than advancing them, and it can be so made if properly controlled.—La Crosse Leader Press.

The atmosphere continues in a stagnant condition over the North American continent. There has been very little change since last week in the distribution of atmospheric pressure, an anti-cyclone off the Atlantic coast, and another off the Pacific coast, with low barometer, and unsettled, warm, and rainy weather in the interior, especially in the Mississippi valley.

The barometric depression that was in British Columbia has disappeared from the field of the weather map, and the area of high barometer has moved northward along the coast. The depression that was in the lower Mississippi valley has moved northward, diminishing in strength, and is now represented by an irregular area of low barometer in the middle Mississippi valley.

WRITES FIRST PAPER ON THE DAIRY HERD
ALLEN E. WEST CONTRIBUTES FIRST OF SERIES ON AGRICULTURE.
TESTING IS IMPORTANT

Only Means by Which Cows Not Paying for Their Keep Can Be Eliminated From the Herd.
(By Allen E. West.)
As winter approaches the Rock county farmer bringing in his cows from the pasture to the barn, begins to think about the heavy cost of feed through the long winter months. It is essential to do so, if he thinks in the right way, for there are two ways to consider the matter, and too many farmers take the wrong way—the way of grumbling about the high cost of living and the injustice done to the farmer. Thinking thus he works longer hours, if possible, goes without conveniences and improvements in house and barn, goes about his work in a spirit conducive to dyspepsia, makes life miserable for his wife and children, considering the "cheerful" prospect of ending his days in our county house. In marked contrast to this the wide awake farmer sets his brain to work to see how he may shape conditions in such a way as to get proper returns for the amount of either money or labor expended for feed.
He has, let us say, from ten to twenty cows. His first problem is this: What shall I do with these cows that may return me the most money? Shall I feed them for beef or shall I keep them for milk production? How shall this be determined?
That these are vital points will be conceded by any thoughtful farmer. That they are points which are not considered as they should be is shown by statistics.
In Illinois one-fourth of the dairy cows are kept at a loss and the best one-fourth return a profit of but $30 per annum. Now $30 is not large wages for the care of a cow for three hundred sixty-five days in the year, but it is vastly better than nothing at all. If, however, a large part of the $30 goes to make up the loss of the other one-fourth of the herd, as is too frequently the case, the farmer has up-hill business in supporting his family. The following table giving statistics taken from an actual herd of fifteen cows is to the point here:

Cow No.	Lb. Milk.	Lb. Fat.	Lb. Protein.	Profit.	Loss.
1.	1204	49	4.07	$27.52
2.	1236	50	4.05	27.20
3.	2944	88	2.99	15.17
4.	2597	91	3.59	15.38
5.	2548	98	3.87	13.18
6.	2474	99	4.00	13.18
7.	2569	105	4.09	10.98
8.	3104	117	3.70	8.37
9.	2820	123	4.34	8.07
10.	3380	149	4.41	1.88
11.	4582	158	3.45	$141.23
12.	4146	174	3.20	28.41
13.	4103	177	4.31	5.41
14.	4993	197	3.82	8.46
15.	4435	200	4.51	10.21
Ave.	3147	124	3.95	28.84	$7.45

A study of this table will show that this much this farmer would have been better off if at the beginning of winter he had sent at least ten of his cows to the block and sold his feed. It shows also that either one of his two poorest cows lost the owner almost as much as was made by all his cows on the credit side of the account. No doubt this is an exceptional case, but it is true that there are many herds where the poor cows are eating up the profits of the good ones.
How can such a state of affairs be avoided? The answer seems simple. The farmer must be a dairy operator, prides himself, somewhat justly, upon his intelligence. He is far from belonging to the hayseed type of the so-called funny column. Now let him prove his intelligence by applying an efficiency test to his dairy operations. Let him regard his cows as so many machines for the manufacture of butter fat. Then let him determine by strictly scientific methods which machines are producing butter fat at a loss and which at a gain.
The first step in this process is to procure scales and a Babcock test, for through a practical dairyman may tell much from the appearance of a cow he will find that the follow up system of weighing and testing is the only absolutely reliable method. To be sure the average farmer is likely to say, "I've no time for fooling with scales and Babcock test." In many cases it is a choice between doing that and doing a lot of hard work for nothing as was the case of the owner of the fifteen cows in the table above, or it may mean a choice between producing $2,000 worth of milk from twenty cows, or bestowing twice as much labor on forty cows and barely paying expenses, as has been shown to be the case where tests have been made.
For obvious reasons the winter season is a good time to begin this work of testing to see what sort of cows one is putting his labor on. Rock county farmers, like others, may be surprised by results shown. The experience of Charles Foss of Cedarville, as told by himself in the Illinois Farmers' Institute Report of 1909, is interesting.
"One of the surprises at the close of the year's test, was the great difference in the production of cows six and seven. They stood side by side in the barn. Both received approximately the same amount of feed and I had always considered them excellent cows. The one produced $3.00 for every dollar's worth of feed consumed, the other $1.40. A small herd of ten cows like No. 6 will return as much net profit as a herd of fifty-three cows like No. 7.
(This surely is an item to be considered in these times when it is so difficult to procure help on a dairy farm.)
"Another cow I had considered a low producer and had at one time thought of selling, returned $2.25 for each $1.00 worth of feed consumed."
This shows how unable we are to distinguish the poor cow from the good one without using the scales and the Babcock test.
